Business & Complex Commercial Litigation
Products Liability
Employment Law

Jon Mader practices litigation at Quattlebaum, Grooms & Tull PLLC, with a focus on business and complex commercial litigation, products liability, and employment law.

After graduating law school and spending a year litigating at the firm, Jon served as a law clerk to the Honorable D. P. Marshall Jr., then Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas. Jon has successfully advised on wide-ranging matters such as defending class-action lawsuits against business clients in state and federal courts, pressing complex out-of-state securities and fraud claims, and disputing high-value product-liability and personal injury claims.

Jon received his J.D., summa cum laude, from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock School of Law where he served as an Associate Editor of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock Law Review. He graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Philosophy and Letters from the University of Dallas.

A United States Army retiree, Mr. Mader served as an infantry officer for more than a decade, including in leadership and command roles from platoon to company level and on battalion- and brigade-level staffs.
